4. Still can't see the "menu on the left side, below the logo" in Explorer:

This may be an issue with your settings in "Compatibility view". To change your settings:

On most computers: Look to the upper left, in the toolbar. Select the word "Tools". Find "Compatibility View" about halfway down the list. Click on the words "Compatibility View" - Each time you click on this spot, it toggles your display between two modes. One of the two modes should allow the animated menus to work.

On other computers: Locate the tab marked "Page" toward the upper right of your screen. (Directly across from the tab which reads "Sunset Athletic Club"). Click on "Page" and look for "Compatibility View". Click on the words "Compatibility View" - Each time you click on this spot, it toggles your display between two modes. One of the two modes should allow the animated menus to work.

Another option is to select "Compatibility View Settings". This opens a window with three check marked options at the bottom. Select ONLY the option which reads: "Include updated website lists from Microsoft".
